The FABLE of the BAT and the BIRDS.

IN ancient times, as learned Æsop shows,
 'Twixt birds and beasts a fatal war arose.
 But whether this from state-intrigues did flow,
 Or to some Church-pretence its birth did owe,
 Or depredations made, concerns us not to know.

Second Winter Month, JANUARY.

THE D E R V I S E.

A DERVISE, travelling through Tartary, being arrived at the town of Balk, went into the King's palace by mistake, as thinking it to be a publick inn or caravanfary. Having looked about him for some time, he entered into a long gallery, where he laid down his wallet, and spread his carpet, in order to repose himself upon it after the manner of the Eastern nations. He had not been long in this posture before he was discovered by some of the guards, who asked him what was his business in that place? The Dervise told them he intended to take up his night's lodgings in that caravanfary. The guards let him know, in a very angry manner, that the house he was in was not a caravanfary, but the king's palace. It happened that the king himself passed through the gallery during this debate, and smiling at the mistake of the Dervise, asked him how he could possibly be so dull as not to distinguish a palace from a caravanfary? Sir, says the Dervise, give me leave to ask your majesty a question or two. Who were the persons that lodged in this house when it was first built? The king replied it was his ancestors. And who, says the Dervise, was the last person that lodged here? The king replied, His father. And who is it, says the Dervise, that lodges here at present? The king told him, that it was he himself. And who, says the Dervise, will be here after you? The king answered, The young prince his son. ' Ah sir, said the Dervise, a house that changes its inhabitants so often, and receives such a perpetual succession of guests, is not a palace but a caravanfary.'

EXPENCIVENESS IN APPAREL.

EXPENCIVENESS in apparel is certainly as great a foolery as men are guilty of, when at huge rates they purchase those things, for which they are no more to be valued than a fore horse for his feather.

Henry IV. King of France, one of the nine worthies, many times went only in a suit of buckram, cut on white canvas, &c. So little they who had the kernel of wisdom and courage, cared for the shell of gaudy apparel.

Third Winter Month, FEBRUARY.

TURKISH TALE.

WE are told that the Sultan Mahmoud, by his perpetual wars abroad, and his tyranny at home, had filled his dominions with ruin and desolation, and half unpeopled the Persian Empire. The Visier to this great Sultan (whether an humourist or an enthusiast, we are not informed) pretended to have learned of a certain Dervise to understand the language of birds, so that there was not a bird that could open his mouth, but the Visier knew what it was he said. As he was one evening with the emperor, in their return from hunting, they saw a couple of owls upon a tree that grew near an old wall out of a heap of rubbish. I would fain know, says the Sultan, what those two owls are saying to one another; listen to their discourse and give me an account of it. The Visier approached the tree, pretending to be very attentive to the two owls. Upon his return to the Sultan, Sir, says he, I have heard part of their conversation, but dare not tell you what it is. The Sultan would not be satisfied with such an answer, but forced him to repeat word for word every thing the owls had said. You must know then, said the Visier, that one of these owls has a son, and the other a daughter, between whom they are now upon a treaty of marriage. The father of the son said to the father of the daughter, in my hearing, brother, I consent to this marriage, provided you will settle upon your daughter fifty ruined villages for her portion. To which the father of the daughter replied, instead of fifty I will give her five hundred if you please. God grant a long life to Sultan Mahmoud; whilst he reigns over us, we shall never want ruined villages.

The story says, the Sultan was so touched with the fable, that he rebuilt the towns and villages which had been destroyed, and from that time forward consulted the good of his people.

A CAUTION IN DEALING.

DEAL as little as may be with those over topping men, to whom a man cannot in confidence, come and ask his own.

First Spring Month, MARCH.

L A B O U R.

LABOUR, the off-spring of Want, and the mother of Health and Contentment, lived with her two daughters in a little cottage, by the side of a hill, at a great distance from town. They were totally unacquainted with the great, and had kept no better company than the neighbouring villagers; but having a desire of seeing the world, they forsook their companions and habitation, and determined to travel. Labour went soberly along the road with Health on the right hand, who by the sprightliness of her conversation and songs of chearfulness and joy, softened the toils of the way; while Contentment went smiling on the left, supporting the steps of her mother, and by her perpetual good humour increasing the vivacity of her sister.

In this manner they travelled over forrests and through towns and villages, till at last they arrived at the capital of the kingdom. At their entrance into the great city, the mother conjured her daughters never to lose sight of her; for it was the will of Jupiter, she said, that their separation should be attended with the utter ruin of all three. But health was of too gay a disposition to regard the counsels of Labour; she suffered herself to be debauched by intemperance, and at last died of child-birth of Disease. Contentment, in the absence of her sister, gave herself up to the enticement of Sloth, and was never heard of after: while Labour, who could have no enjoyment without her daughters, went every where in search of them, till she was at last seized by Lassiude in her way, and died in misery.

OF INDUSTRY AND FRUGALITY.

WHERE industry and frugality prevail, there learning prospers, for when no pains are spared, nor time wasted in order to the attainment of it, the progress must be proportionable, and the increase come up to the measure of such extraordinary, and (I am ready to say) never failing means.

Be good husbands betimes, 'tis too late to spare at the bottom, when all is drawn out to the Lees.

IV. Mo. April, begins on Tuesday, hath 30 Days.

As fortune wou'd, on an ill-fated day,
The beasts drew out their forces in array,
The diff'rent kinds their grudges laid aside,
And for the common safety now provide;
Even their old piques, and warm disputes forgot,
The Hind and Panther join'd upon the spot,
And by one mutual league of friendship held,
Prepare for the rough business of the field. When

Second Spring Month, APRIL.

IN PRAISE OF VIRTUE.

VIRTUE is of intrinsic value and good desert, and of indispensable obligation; not the creature of will, but necessary and immutable; not local or temporary, but of equal extent and antiquity with the DIVINE MIND! not a mode of sensation, but everlasting TRUTH; not dependent on power, but the guide of all power. VIRTUE is the foundation of honour and esteem, and the source of all beauty, order, and happiness in nature. It is what confers value on all the other endowments and qualities of a reasonable being, to which they ought to be absolutely subservient, and without which the more eminent they are, the more hideous deformities and the greater curses they become. The use of it is not confined to any one stage of our existence, or to any particular situation we can be in, but reaches through all the periods and circumstances of our beings — Many of the endowments and talents we now possess, and of which we are too apt to be proud, will cease entirely with the present state; but this will be our ornament and dignity in every future state to which we may be removed. Beauty and wit will die, learning will vanish away, and all the arts of life be soon forgot; but virtue will remain forever. This unites us to the whole rational creation, and fits us for conversing with any order of superior natures, and for a place in any part of God's works. It procures us the approbation and love of all wise and good beings, and renders them our allies and friends. — But what is of unspeakable greater consequence is, that it makes God our friend, assimilates and unites our minds to his, and engages his almighty power in our defence. — Superior beings of all ranks are bound by it no less than ourselves. It has the same authority in all worlds that it has in this. The further any being is advanced in excellence and perfection, the greater is his attachment to it, and the more is he under its influence. — To say no more; 'Tis the LAW of the whole universe; it stands first in the estimation of the Deity; its original is His nature; and it is the very object that makes Him lovely.

Then straight descending with redoubl'd might
They spend their fury and renew the fight. Pale

Third Spring Month, MAY.

Such is the importance of Virtue.—Of what consequence therefore, is it that we practise it?—There is no argument or motive which is at all fitted to influence a reasonable mind, which does not call us to this. One virtuous disposition of soul is preferable to the greatest natural accomplishments and abilities, and of more value than all the treasures of the world. If you are wise, then, study virtue, and condemn every thing that can come in competition with it. Remember, that this alone is honour, glory, wealth, and happiness. Secure this, and you secure every thing.—Lose this, and all is lost.

THE OLD MAN AND HIS ASS.

AN old man and a little boy were driving an ass to the next market to sell. What a fool is this fellow (says a man upon the road) to be trudging it on foot with his son, that his ass may go light! the old man, hearing this, set his boy upon the ass, and went whistling by the side of him. Why, sirrah, (cries a second man to the boy) is it fit for you to be riding, while your poor old father is walking on foot? The father, upon this rebuke, took down his boy from the ass, and mounted himself. Do you see (says a third) how the lazy old knave rides along upon his beast, while his poor little boy is almost crippled with walking? The old man no sooner heard this, than he took up his son behind him. Pray, honest friend (says a fourth) is that ass your own? Yes, says the old man. One would not have thought so, replied the other, by your loading him so unmercifully. You and your son are better able to carry the poor beast than he you. Any thing to please, says the owner; and alighting with his son, they tied the legs of the ass together, and by the help of a pole endeavoured to carry him upon their shoulders over the bridge that led to the town. This was so entertaining a sight that the people ran in crowds to laugh at it; till the ass, conceiving a dislike to the over complaisance of his master, burst asunder the cords that tied him, slipped from the pole, and tumbled into the river.—The poor old man made the best of his way home, ashamed and vexed that by endeavouring to please every body, he had pleased nobody, and lost his ass into the bargain.

VI. Mo. June, begins on Sunday, hath 30 Days.

Pale Victory, all trembling and dismay'd,
With doubtful wings the purple sceoe survey'd
At last propitious to her feather'd kind,
Declar'd her favour, and the scale inclin'd.
Whole hecatombs the cover'd field possest,
And gave their foes at once a triumph and a feast.
Their slaughter'd young the Rachel-dams-deplor'd,
And many a widow'd cow mourn'd o'er her horned lord.

THE CONTENTED PORTER.

A PORTER, one day resting himself, with his load by him, groaned aloud, and "wished he had five hundred pounds." "Why," says a gentleman who was passing by, "I will give you five hundred pounds;—and now what will you do with it?" "Oh," says the porter, "I will soon tell you what I will do with it: First, I will have a pint of ale, and a toast and nutmeg, every morning for my breakfast." "Well, and what time will you get up?" "Oh, I have been used to be up at five or six o'clock, so I will do that now." "Well, what will you do after breakfast?" "Why, I will fetch a walk till dinner." "And what will you have for dinner?" "Why, I will have a good dinner: I will have good roast and boiled beef, and some carrots and green—and I will have a full pot every day—and then I will smoke a pipe." "Well, and then perhaps, you will take a nap." "Maybe I may—no, I will not take a nap; I will fetch another walk till supper." "Well, and what will you have for supper?" "I do not know—I will have more beef, if I am hungry; or else I will have a Welch rabbit, and another full pot of beer."—Well, and then?" "Why, then I will go to bed, to be sure." Pray, how much now may you earn a week by your business?" "Why, master, I can make you eighteen shillings a week." "Will not you be tired now, do you think, after a little while, in doing nothing every day?" "I do not know, master, I have been thinking so." Well then, let me propose a scheme to you." "With all my heart, master." "Can not you do all this every day, as you are, and employ yourself into the bargain?" "Why, really so I can, master, I think, and so take your five hundred pounds again, and thank you."

Second Summer Month, JULY.

VALENTINE AND UNNION.

AT the siege of Namur by the Allies, there were in the ranks of the company commanded by Captain Pincent, in Colonel Frederick Hamilton's regiment, one Unnion a corporal, and one Valentine a private centinel: there happened between these two men a dispute about an affair of love, which, upon some aggravations, grew to an irreconcilable hatred. Unnion being the officer of Valentine, took all opportunities even to strike his rival, and profess the spite and revenge which moved him to it. The centinel bore it without resistance; but frequently said, he would die to be revenged of that tyrant. They had spent whole months in this manner, the one injuring, the other complaining; when in the midst of this rage towards each other, they were commanded upon the attack of the castle, where the corporal received a shot in the thigh, and fell; the French pressing on, and he expecting to be trampled to death, called out to his enemy, "Ah, Valentine! can you leave me here?" Valentine immediately ran back, and in the midst of a thick fire of the French took the corporal upon his back, and brought him through all that danger as far as the abbey of Saline, where a cannon ball took off his head: his body fell under his enemy whom he was carrying off. Unnion immediately forgot his wound, rose up, tearing his hair, and then threw himself upon the bleeding carcase, crying, "Ah, Valentine! was it for me who have so barbarously used thee, that thou hast died? I will not live after thee." He was not by any means to be forced from the body, but was removed with it bleeding in his arms, and attended with tears by all their comrades who knew their enmity. When he was brought to a tent, his wounds were dressed by force; but the next day still calling upon Valentine, and lamenting his cruelties to him, he died in the pangs of remorse.

SELECT SENTENCES.

A wise man will desire no more than what he may get justly, use soberly, distribute chearfully, and live upon contentedly.

Third Summer Month, AUGUST.

CHARACTER OF A TRUE FRIEND.

CONCERNING the man you call your friend—tell me, Will he weep with you in the hour of your distress? Will he faithfully reprove you to your face, for actions for which others are ridiculing or censuring you behind your back! Will he dare to stand forth in your defence, when detraction is secretly aiming its deadly weapons at your reputation? Will he acknowledge you with the same cordiality, and behave to you with the same friendly attention, in the company of your superiors in rank and fortune, as when the claims of pride or vanity do not interfere with those of friendship? If misfortunes and losses should oblige you to retire into a walk of life, in which you cannot appear with the same distinction, or entertain your friends with the same liberality as formerly, will he still think himself happy in your society, and, instead of gradually withdrawing himself from an unprofitable connection, take pleasure in professing himself your friend, and cheerfully assist you to support the burthen of your afflictions? When sickness shall call you to retire from the gay and busy scenes of the world, will he follow you into your gloomy retreat, listen with attention to your “tale of symptoms,” and minister the balm of consolation to your fainting spirit? and lastly, when death shall burst asunder every tie, will he shed a tear upon your grave, and lodge the dear remembrance of your mutual friendship in his heart, as a treasure never to be resigned? The man who will not do all this, may be your companion—your flatterer—your seducer—but, believe me, he is not your friend.

SELECT SENTENCES.

To be active in laudable pursuits, is the distinguishing characteristic of a man of merit.

There is an heroic innocence, as well as an heroic courage.

A man may have a thousand intimate acquaintances, and not a friend among them all. If you have one friend think yourself happy.

Next, cuckow Rimer, always in a note;
And peacock Chetwood, of the clergy kind;

First Fall Month, SEPTEMBER.

EXAMPLE OF VERACITY.

A SPANISH cavalier, having assassinated a Moorish gentleman, instantly fled from justice. He was vigorously pursued; but availing himself of a sudden turn in the road, he leaped, unperceived, over a garden wall. The proprietor, who was also a Moor, happened to be at that time, walking in the garden; and the Spaniard fell upon his knees before him, acquainted him with his case, and in the most pathetic manner implored concealment. The Moor listened to him with compassion, and generously promised him assistance. He then locked him in a summer house, and left him, with an assurance that, when night approached, he would provide for his escape. A few hours afterwards, the dead body of his son was brought to him; and the description of the murderer exactly agreed with the appearance of the Spaniard, whom he had then in custody. He concealed the horror and suspicion which he felt; and retiring to his chamber, remained there till midnight. Then going privately into the garden, he opened the door of the summer-house, and thus accosted the cavalier, "Christian," said he, "the youth whom you have murdered is my only son. Your crime merits the severest punishment. But I have solemnly pledged my word for your security; and I disdain to violate even a rash engagement with a cruel enemy." He conducted the Spaniard to the stables, and furnishing him with one of his swiftest mules, "Fly," said he, whilst the darkness of the night conceals you. Your hands are polluted with blood; but God is just; and I humbly thank him that my faith is unspotted, and that I have resigned judgment unto him."

SELECT SENTENCES.

Ingratitude is a crime so shameful, that the man was never yet found, who would acknowledge himself guilty of it.

There cannot be a greater treachery, than first to raise a confidence, and then deceive it.

By taking revenge a man is but even with his enemy; but in passing it over, he is superior.

A HUMOUROUS TALE.

I HAPPENED the other night in company with some men of honour, brave fellows, who were a little nice in their conversation, as well as their wine, that try'd every word that was spoke by the touch-stone of good manners, and one of them happening to say he was a lieutenant on board one of his Majesty's small frigates, when so violent a storm happened on the coast of Ireland, that a monumental sea washing over the top-mast head, by the very pressure of its weight sunk the vessel to the bottom of the ocean, which gave such a prodigious knock against the sand with her keel, that the very rebound, being a tight ship, sent her up again to the surface, without damage; and that by a watch of Tompion's, which he had in his pocket, they were three quarters of an hour and some odd minutes in this dangerous expedition, that is, in going down and coming up again. Lord, Sir, says I, how did you breathe all that while? Zoons, Sir, says he, 'tis an affront to ask a gentleman such a question, and I demand satisfaction? am I bound to tell every blockhead how many times I fetch my breath in three quarters of an hour? Nay, Sir, said I, if you are for that sport, have at you, I'm a man of honour, and dare wait upon you any where; with that he whisper'd me to go down stairs, which we both did accordingly, and drawing at the door, the first pass I made was a home thrust (for I never love to delay in such cases) and I run him through the center of the fifth jubilee button of his coat, and just scratched him in the breast, upon which he dropp'd his sword, believing I had killed him; but I taking up the fallen weapon, stepp'd to him and unbrac'd him, found he was more afraid than hurt; and that it was but a small prick that signified nothing: Now pray, Sir, said I, how did you breathe, I think I may make bold to ask you? I'll tell you, Sir, said he, I took in the water at my mouth, just as a fish does, but having no gills to give it vent, I let it out of my fundament. Upon which answer, I was well satisfied, gave him his sword and we became as great friends as the devil and the Earl of Kent.

Third Fall Month, NOVEMBER.

A DESCRIPTION OF A TAVERN.

A TAVERN is a little Sodom, where as many vices are practised as ever were known in the great one.—Thither Libertines repair to drink away their brains, and piss away their estates; Aldermen to talk treason, and bewail the loss of trade; Saints to elevate the spirit, hatch calumnies, coin false news, and reproach the Church; Gamesters to shake their elbows, and pick the pockets of such cullies who have no more wit than to play with them; Rakes with their Whores, that by the help of wine they may be more impudent and more wicked, and do those things in their cups, that would be a scandal to sobriety; Lovers with their Mistresses, in hopes to wash away that modesty with the soothing juice, which had been a hindrance to their happiness, so that they may fall to without grace, and give a pleasing earnest to each other of their future affections: Thither Sober Knaves walk with Drunken Fools, to make cunning bargains, and over-reach them in their dealings, where cloaking their mental reservations with a grave countenance, they will tell more lies about a hog'shead of tobacco, than Tavernier in his travels does about mount Etna. Thither Young Quality retire to spend their tradesmen's money, and to delight themselves with the impudence of lewd harlots, free from the reflections or remarks of their own servants, whilst their Ladies at home are doing themselves justice after the like manner, and perhaps, for want of better opportunity, are glad to break a commandment with their own footmen. Thither Bullies coach it to kick drawers, and invent new oaths and curses, and in feasting, rattling and blustering, to lavish away that scandalous income called a petticoat-pension, though doomed the next day to a three-penny ordinary. Thither run Sots purely to be drunk, that they may either wash away the reflections of their own past follies, or forget the treachery of their friends, the falsehood of their wives, the disobedience of their children, the roguery of their lawyers, the bitchery of their paramours, or the ingratitude of the world, that they may drown the remembrance of past evils in the enjoyment of the present.

A precious Ointment for a Horse's Eye, either for Bite, Blow, or Film.

GO to the Apothecary's and buy the Stone called Lapis Celaminaris, it is of a blue Colour, heat it red hot, then take it out and quench it presently in a pint and an half of White Wine, and so heat it and quench it as afore, twelve Times one after another; then add unto the Wine half so much of the Juice of Houfleeck, well stamped and strained, and stir them up well together; dip a Feather in this Water, and dress it two or three Times a Day, till the sight be recovered.

To preserve Cattle in Health.

FOR the preservation of Cattle in good and perfect Health, it shall be meet that for the young and lusty, and indeed generally for all Sorts, except Calves to let them Blood twice in the Year; namely, the Spring and Fall, the Moon being in any of the lower Signs, and also to give them to drink of the Pickle of Olives mixed with a Head of Garlick, bruised therein; and for your Calves, be only careful that they go not too soon to Grass, and small Danger is to be feared. Now, notwithstanding all a Man's Carefulness, Beasts daily do get Infirmities, and often do fall into mortal Extremities; peruse, therefore, the following, and you shall find a Cure for some particular Diseases.

Of the Fever in Cattle.

CATTLE are most subject unto a Fever, and it cometh either from Surfeit of Food, being raw and musty, or from Flux of cold Humours, ingendered by bad Keeping. The Signs are Trembling, heavy Eyes, a foaming Mouth, and much Groaning.

The Cure.

And the Cure is, you shall let him Blood; then give him to drink a Quart of Ale, in which is boiled three or four Roots of Plantain, and two Spoonfuls of the best London Treacle, and let his Hay be sprinkled with Water.

Of any inward Sicknes in Cattle.

FOR any inward Sicknes or Drooping in Cattle, take a Quart of strong Ale, and boil it with a Handful of Wormwood, and Half a Handful of Rue; then strain it, and add to it two Spoonfuls of the Juice of Garlick, as much of the Juice of Hopseek, and as much London Treacle; then give it the Beast to drink, being no more than lukewarm.

To kill Lice Cattle in.

TAKE a broad Woollen Lint, as broad as your Hand, that will go round about his Neck, then wet the Lint well in Train Oil, and sew it about the Beast's Neck, and the Lice will come to it, and it will kill them if there were never so many; daub some about the Beast in several Places, and they will come to it, and it will kill them. No Flies in Summer will come near any Wound or Sore wherewith this is applied, for it will kill them.

For a HORSE or COW that is poisoned by licking of venom, or is over-gorged with Clover-grass or Turnips.

EITHER horse or cow will swell or flaver very much, and will be so extremely full, as if they were ready to burst, and the skin to crack; if they drink soon after it, so much the worse: but if he be alive when you give him this, it will cure him in a quarter of an hour, for it will work as soon as it is in his body; For the cure, take a quarter of a pound of Castile soap, and scrape it thin, and put it to two ounces of Dialphera, which you shall have at the apothecary's; bray them in a mortar small together, and make them up in balls as big as a barber's wash-ball, and lay them by till you have occasion to use them: One ball is enough for one beast to cure this disease: you must dissolve the ball in a pint and an half of strong-beer scalding hot, and give it lukewarm, the hotter the beer is, the sooner it will dissolve, but if haste require, crumble the ball in as small as you can, and give him it down in a horn; he will soon be empty by pissing and scouring.
